

THE FELLOWS' LIBRARY

INFORMATION FOR USING THE COLLECTIONS

Please sign the visitors' book. Readers from outside College will be asked for a Bodleian Libraries reader's card or other photographic identification.

Please respect this historic room and always handle the collections with care. Food and drink (including water) are forbidden. No pens are allowed: please use a pencil or laptop for taking notes and never mark any part of a book.

Books must be placed on foam rests or other supports. Weights ('snakes') are available to hold open tight bindings and a paper knife can be supplied for unopened leaves.

Library staff will be pleased to advise on appropriate handling. Let us know if you see tears, mould, or other damage.

Wireless internet access is available throughout the Fellows' Library. There are power points underneath each bookcase and in the floor along the aisle.

Photography of the interior and from the books is allowed for private research and study. Please ask Library staff for advice. Publication requires formal permission from the Librarian.

Most of the books in the Fellows' Library, but not all, have been catalogued in SOLO, the library catalogue covering the majority of library collections of the University of Oxford. For completeness, please check the card catalogue (not updated after 2010). Shelflists for browsing are available together with a small number of printed reference tools such as STC and 'Wing'.

The Librarian will be pleased to receive citations to and offprints of academic work which draws on the contents of the Fellows' Library. For a short history of the Library, please read the leaflet 'Information for visitors'.
